FRENCH REFUGES IN LONDON .- The city of London is full of fugitives from the war. There tre a few Germans among them, who fled to avoid nilitary duty ; but the great majority are French, for the most part women and children and elderly peu. The more opulent among them, driving n open carriages through the parks and gardens, r lounging in the fashionable promenades, give n unusual air of vivacity to the British capital. On Monday last, Mr. W. C. Jones, as counsel for Kaaoaopa, (w), brought a case before His Honor the Chancellor, E. H. Allen, as claimant, by virtue of being an adopted child, for the estate of Nakuapa, (w), deceased. The property involved is very considerable, some of it situated in the heart of the city, and the principles involved are very important as precedents in other cases which are or may be brought before the Courts. In this case, it is estimated that the property in the hands of the administrator, Mr. A. F. Judd, is worth from $30,000 to $40,000, held under leases, and otherwise. A brief was filed by Col. Jones, which was very elaborate on the question of adoption, under the ancient regime, and which we hope to be able to print in our next issue. Counsel on both sides argued learnedly, at the conclusion of which His Honor, remarking that the case, being a very important one, must go to the full bench, caused judgment to be entered in favor of the complainant, Kaaosopa. We shall look with no little interest for the final decision of the full Court, as many other cases may depend upon its conclusions, as to the rights of adopted children.

Anniversary Sermon.

Sunday morning services at the Bethel were fully attended, the occasion being a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Damon, on the subject of the Two Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth, Mass. They say there are only a few thousand Germans Among the audience we noticed His Excellency H. A. Pierce, Minister Resident of the United States, H. H. M.'s Minister of Finance, and other personages of note,

The preacher took his text from the epistle of James, 3d chapter, 5th verse-" Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth." The discourse was in a great measure a historical account of the perils, trials and sufferings of the pioneers of civilization and religious freedom in New England, from whence that civilization and those principles of religious freedom have spread over the entire continent, even unto the isles of the sea. The stern fortitude of the pilgrims, and their early enunciation of their loyalty to the King, and, at the same time, their unflinching adhesion to the principles of civil liberty, were commented on in glowing terms. Altogether, the discourse was an extremely interesting and instructive one, and held the numerous audience in unbroken attention to the close. We hope to see it printed, for aside from its other merits, it gives some historical facts not generally known, and which deserve to be preserved in every one's library. During the services the choir sang, in excellent taste and style, Mrs. Heman's celebrated ode, which we cannot do better than to

On the wild New England shore. Not as the conqueror comes, They, the true hearted, came : Not with the roll of the stirring drums,

And the trumpet that sings of fame ; Not as the flying come, In silence and in fear ;-

They shook the depths of the desert gloom With their hymns of lofty cheer. Amidst the storm they sang, And the stars heard, and the sea!

And the sounding aisles of the dim wood rang To the anthem of the free. The ocean eagle soared From his nest by the white wave's foam, And the rocking pines of the forest roared-

This was their welcome home! Bright jewels of the mine? The wealth of seas, the spoils of war ?-

Freedom to worship God. E. B. Washburne.

The above named gentleman is the Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States at Paris. When a boy Mr. Washburne was an apprentice to the printing business, in the service of the late Hon. Luther Severance, formerly Commissioner and Minister Resident at these islands. He retains a high regard for the memory of his most substantial friend in his boyhood, from whom he received lessons of patriotic integrity much, but failed to obtain an interview with the that he never forgot, and which no doubt have King, because His Majesty insisted that the right done much to make his life, as a practical states-

Property of great value was placed in his hands, every dollar of which will be returned to the rightful owners when called for. He is a man about the size of and, perhaps, about the age of Marshal Parke, though of lighter complexion, with large grey eyes and overbanging eye-brows. His energy of character amounts to genius, united with quickness of perception, and a cool courage that never fails him in time of need. When he strikes, he hits the nail on the head fair and square, and drives it home with effectual force. Prussia did right in seeking his assistance, as above, in Paris.
